Summary

* My startup journey as BrainX's founder:

I'm a Vietnamese entrepreneur by trait. I entered the mobile app business on Google Store and Apple Store from 2017. Then I started a software outsourcing business on Upwork during the pandemic in 2021. This helped me understand how Upwork works.

I hired and worked with remote freelance developers in different countries. It was a good experience working with quality freelance developers who delivered professionalism, satisfaction, peace of mind and revenue to my projects versus not quality developers.

I also worked for 2 software outsourcing companies and 2 startups. By the end of 2021, I had a chance to work remotely with the neurotech startup NeuroGeneces in the US as a CEO assistant.

These personal and professional experiences have led me to found BrainX, a freelance tech talent platform connecting Asia's top tech talents to highly-paying job markets.
